Speaker Bio:

As a school-based occupational therapist with over 6 years of experience in the public school system, Jennifer Huff is passionate about empowering practitioners to be effective, collaborative members of their school teams. She received her BA in Kinesiology from Northwest Nazarene University and her MOT from Pacific University. She completed her micro-credential as an Executive Functions Consultant through Sensational Brain. In addition to working for a local school district, Jennifer Huff provides resources and mentorship opportunities to school-based occupational therapy practitioners nationwide through her company, Jennifer Huff LLC, founded in 2023. She seeks to equip others to embrace best practices, find community, and effectively engage in their vital role as part of the educational team. Jennifer Huff recognizes the unique struggles that school-based OT practitioners face, including lack of training opportunities, inconsistent expectations and policies across districts, limited support, and poor alignment of educational and developmental standards. She enjoys speaking about relevant school topics, including the fundamentals of school-based practice, supporting executive functioning, and providing collaborative, integrated services in the school setting.
